Message from the OABR President

Wow! Time sure flies when you are having fun!
November was an exciting month, and it is fun to have the holiday season upon us. Last month,
I had the opportunity to attend the National Association of REALTORS® Annual Convention.
It was a fabulous event with lots of opportunities to learn and to be inspired. I would like to congratulate two Nebraska REALTORS® who were recognized at the NAR convention for their outstanding service. Joe Gehrki of CBSHome received the President's Cup Award, and Rob Dover was recognized as REALTOR® of the Year for the State of Nebraska. Congratulations to Joe and Rob!
If you have the opportunity in the future to attend a national convention, I would encourage you to do so. It is a great opportunity to invest in yourself and your business.

David Matney 2013 President

Next month, we are excited to begin agent-direct electronic payments for monthly MLS fees. This will save both time and money, streamlining the process to make all of us more efficient. By having electronic payments in place, it will help all of us focus on dollar-productive tasks which will grow our businesses. A "shout-out" to Debbie Peterson, Membership and Accounting Manager for the OABR, for all the hard work she is doing to make this happen.

BIG EVENT

Mark your calendars for January 17th! David Knox, a nationally recognized trainer and speaker, will be helping you kick off the new year with a FREE seminar sponsored by your Omaha Area Board of REALTORS* and Focus Printing. The three-hour morning seminar is titled, "Thirteen ways to Kick-Off your 2013," and David will be covering items such as goal setting, lead conversion, securing listings and more! Space is limited, so contact Donna Shipley at 402-619-5551 to reserve your spot! This will be a great event!

Finally, I would like to wish all of you a very Merry Christmas and Happy New Year! Let's make December a POWERFUL month!

David Matney 2013 President

A winning night for the Omaha Area Board of REALTORS® members with family and friends for the Omaha Lancers Hockey night. Over 100 people enjoyed a chicken fried chicken with mashed potatoes, gravy, corn and bread at Grandmother's before the game. The Lancers played the Waterloo Blackhawks at the new

The Omaha Area Board of REALTORS® is required to provide access to necessary ethics training programs either locally, in conjunction with other boards and associations, or through other methods. Any training offered pursuant to this requirement must meet the learning objectives and minimum criteria established by the National Association of REALTORS® from time to time.

Can't Afford To Retire?

Wouldn't it be great if we all went to work because we wanted to and not because we had to? A recent article in CNN Money stated: "Not so long ago "debt" was a four-letter word when spoken in the same breath as "retirement." Before waltzing into their golden years, older Americans paid off their loans, then celebrated by burning the mortgage".

How things have changed. Now a third of 65 and older Americans have a mortgage vs. 20% just two decades ago. Seniors 65 and up are also carrying an average of $10,235 on credit cards.

Well meaning financial advisors are telling seniors to get a home equity loan rather than a reverse mortgage. It all sounds great until you look at the big picture. Will both spouses live another 15 years to pay off the debt or more importantly not need to borrow more? Does the loan have a 5 year provision that changes an interest only payment to a larger one or worse yet, need to be paid off? Many people believe that whatever caused them to go into debt is a one time occurrence and when this is paid off "we will be fine." Sadly that isn't usually the case. When the loan becomes due, the debt ratios can be greater than they were originally, prohibiting the homeowner from refinancing. Worse yet, if one spouse passes away, the remaining spouse may not be able to afford the payment without the 2nd Social Security income.

I see many clients who are tired and need to be re-tired but can't afford to quit working. A reverse mortgage may be the answer. You must be at least 62. There are no debt ratio or income qualifications. There are no monthly payments. Depending on the amount of equity in the home, they may qualify to receive monthly income. The balance is paid when the homeowner or their heirs sell the home. Also, at the time of sale, no one is liable if the mortgage is greater than the value of the home. As with any mortgage, any remaining equity belongs to the seller.

CALL FOR ACTION: Ask Congress to extend Mortgage Forgiveness Tax Relief. Over one-fourth of all transactions nationwide still involve distressed properties. Without an extension, families engaged in loan modifications, short sales, or foreclosures will face a large tax bill. The housing market does not need another burden. Homeowners should not be forced to pay tax on money they lost with cash they never received! Tell Congress to complete their unfinished housing-related business when they return to Washington.

ASK THE HOME INSPECTOR!

- By Patrick Casey, President
 The Home Buyers Protection Company
 - Home & Building Inspections Radon & Mold Testing

The following article is intended to provide pertinent home and building inspection information to the readers. Your input is welcome by emailing your questions to pat@hbponline.com.

Question: We were in our attic recently and noticed that the roof framing is discolored and there appears to be mold on it. We have never had a roof leak. Why is this occurring?

Answer: The discoloration is likely due to inadequate attic ventilation. Attics need to breathe, and without proper ventilation, high humidity collects on the roof framing in the attic and causes the discoloration. If not corrected, problems can occur:

- Increased cooling bills
- Shortened life of the shingles
- Damage to the roof framing and the attic insulation

- Mold growth
- Ice damming

For typical attics, a minimum of 1 sq. ft. of 'net free vent area' is needed per every 300 sq. ft. of attic space. There needs to be an equal amount of soffit vents (intake) and roof vents (exhaust) for proper air flow. There are many different types of vents available such as stationary vents, wind turbines, power attic fans, gable vents and continuous ridge vents. Consult with a qualified home inspector or roofing contractor to determine which types are most appropriate for your home.

Young REALTORS® at REALTOR® Ring Day

"The future depends on what we do today." -Gandhi.

The Young Omaha Real Estate Professionals (Y.O.R.E. Pro's) are busy planning future events. We hope that everyone will sign up for REALTOR® Ring Day on December 7th. There will be many locations and time slots available to choose from. Afterwards, the YPN invites you to join us at the Phoenix, located at 12015 Blondo Street for happy hour and appetizers from 4-7 p.m. This will be a great place to warm up and network with your fellow REALTORS® and Affiliates.

This year the YPN has decided to sponsor a family through Project Wee Care as a way to give back to our community. Project Wee Care was formed to provide food, clothing and gifts for families in our local area, who for whatever reason may not have a Merry Christmas. On December 8th, our members will volunteer to help with distribution day and present gifts to those families. We are looking forward to helping these families ensure they have a very Merry Christmas.

February, we are planning our first annual Bingo night. We are still working out the details, but follow us on Facebook at facebook. com/OABRYPN and watch for emails from YPN@OABR.com to get more information about this event.

The YPN's mission is to help strengthen the REALTOR® brand and to nurture the positive relationship between the real estate industry and the public. This is achieved through taking active roles in policy and advocacy issues, offering education and networking opportunities to all members and staying informed about the latest industry trends and technology.

Through your participation, our goal of ensuring the long-term success of the REALTOR® brand through positive, successful relationships with our local community will be easily attained. We can't wait to see everyone at our next event!

Listing Syndication

The MLS sends listing information to the syndication service ListHub, who in turn can provide the information to over 50 national websites. The practice of syndicating listing detail is one of the most challenging issues our industry faces today. Sites like Zillow and Trulia receive the data, and in turn use it to sell advertising on their sites as well as provide a variety of fee based services for agents.

Each broker has the ability to opt-in or opt-out of any or all of these sites. The objective is to have inquiries about listings come back to the listing agent, but this happens in less than predictable fashion. Some brokers are making sure that when these sites display the detail information about a listing, the detail also contains listing agent information as well.

One way to get agent information on these sites is to use the "Syndication Remarks" field in the MLS. This field is available on the current Residential and Residential-Rental LIP sheet. The MLS does not send ListHub the "Public Remarks" any longer. They do, however, send the "Syndication Remarks" and it is the only remarks field available to the ListHub websites. This allows the entry of, not only the duplicated content of the "Public Remarks" field but also the listing agent's name, contact information and personal website URL.

This is an opportunity for agents to retain some control from syndication websites and still gain the exposure they provide. Your broker has access to a list of the sites that they have elected to provide listing content. We believe the listing agent is the best source for the consumer.

Omaha Was at the Table 100 Years Ago

Omaha was at the table 100 years ago when the first Code of Ethics was written. The year 2013 marks the centennial of the Code of Ethics and Standards of Practice of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS*. The first Code was written before license laws and most other regulations governing real estate existed and was seen as a declaration of the industry's principles and beliefs. The Code, a living document that today undergoes annual review and revision, has been called a "golden thread," uniting those devoted to raising the standards of professionalism and service in real estate. Here's a look back at a few defining moments in the life of one of the industry's most important documents.

STRONG UNDERPINNINGS

When NAR was founded in 1908 as the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges, the organization's bylaws included provisions for seven key committees, one of which was a committee on the Code of Ethics. So why did it take nearly five years for members of the committee to put pen to paper and write the first Code? During the intervening years, members spent much time — at local board meetings, at annual conventions, and in articles — exploring how the concept of ethics might apply to real estate in a meaningful way. Through this process, two of the Code's most vital and enduring concepts were developed. In 1910, C. F. Harrison of Omaha, Neb., pointed out that a code of ethics "naturally divides itself into two parts, the broker's duty to his clients and the broker's duty to his fellow brokers." Today, the code has a third section: duties to the public. In June 1912, Frank Craven of Philadelphia, Pa., suggested the Golden Rule as the ideal starting point. It's now part of the Code's preamble in language that remains endearingly frozen in time: "Whatsoever ye would that others should do to you, do ye even so to them."

BALTIMORE CAME FIRST

Although NAR's Code was the first to be applied to real estate professionals nationally, it was not the first code of ethics for real estate. The Greater Baltimore Board of REALTORS®, when it was founded in 1858, incorporated rules of conduct into its bylaws that discouraged members from stealing one another's listings. Those rules are considered to be the industry's first formal ethics rules. By 1913, many local associations had ethics codes. In fact, the 1913 Code was modeled after rules developed by the Kansas City association. Since adoption of the Code was voluntary, some boards created their own versions even after 1913. The national association amended its bylaws in 1923, requiring all local associations to adopt the Code.

YEP. THE RULES APPLY TO YOU

At first, it was assumed that real estate brokers, once made aware of the rules, would simply abide by them. At least in some instances, that proved to be more hope than reality. So by 1915, the national association was encouraging local boards to set up enforcement procedures. NAR's first ethics enforcement guidelines were issued in 1925. Still, seven decades later, enforcement was apparently still an issue, because in 1998, NAR President R. Layne Morrill appointed a presidential advisory group to address the problem. The group recommended several steps to enhance enforcement, one of which was for all REALTORS® to successfully complete Code of Ethics training on a periodic basis. A four-year cycle of ethics training was instituted the next year, with the first cycle running from 2000 to 2004. The current training cycle ends on Dec. 31, 2012.

27-YEAR FREEZE

The Code was meant to evolve; it was thoroughly revised in 1914, 1915, and 1924, and an amendment prohibiting "horseback appraisals" — what we would now call drive-by appraisals was added in 1928. After 1928, however, the Code was declared "complete" and not touched again for more than 20 years. A 1948 member survey found the Code was outdated and no longer the source of pride, so the newly formed Professional Standards Committee set about bringing it up to date. But efforts to enact the proposed revisions were put on hold when the federal government brought an antitrust action against NAR. At issue was Article 9, which required REALTORS® to follow their board's published commissions and fees. NAR said the provision protected consumers from paying unfair and arbitrary rates, but the Justice Department called the rate setting anticompetitive. The case reached the U.S. Supreme Court, which, in 1950, declared that Article 9 was illegal. It was removed from the Code, but attempts to bring the remaining articles up-to-date were rejected. In 1955, the Professional Standards Committee tried again. This time the revisions passed.

INSPIRATIONAL AND ASPIRATIONAL

"Under all is the land" is a familiar phrase. It's the opening of the Code's preamble, which sets forth the social responsibilities of the association and its members. The famous introduction, written by A. H. Barnhisel of Tacoma, Wash., was added in 1924. In 1955, the language was modernized, but REALTORS® were unhappy with the changes, and in 1961 members reverted to the earlier language "because of its superior phrasing." No further attempts were made to alter the preamble until 1994.

WINDING PATH TO EQUAL OPPORTUNITY

Today, the Code is renowned for its progressive attitude toward equal opportunity and fair housing, surpassing the federal government's own laws prohibiting discrimination against various protected classes. But it took many years for the Code to reach its current level of openness, and for several decades it was widely criticized for being discriminatory. The original Code didn't address topics of nationality or skin color, but a 1924 addition — the infamous Article 34 — stated that members "should never be instrumental in introducing into a neighborhood a character of property or occupancy, members of any race or nationality, or any individuals whose presence will clearly be detrimental to property values in that neighborhood." As explained in 1965 by Eugene REALTOR® FOCUS Conser, NAR's executive vice president from 1955 to 1970, this provision "reflected the then widely accepted policy of 'separate but equal," established under the Supreme Court's Plessy v. Ferguson decision of 1896. Conser cited another Supreme Court ruling, 1947's landmark Shelley v. Kraemer, as the beginning of the end of Article 34. That decision struck down states' rights to enforce restrictive covenants — in this case, an agreement among neighbors to bar real estate sales to African Americans and Asians. It led the association in 1950 to remove all references to "race or nationality," but the full article wasn't removed until later. The Code underwent a complete revision in 1974, when a new provision — Article 10 — brought it in line with federal fair housing and employment law; a 1989 revision factored in 1988 amendments to the federal Fair Housing Act; and in 2010, REALTORS® moved beyond federal rules, adding a requirement for equal service and employment opportunity regardless of sexual orientation.

HEAR THEM ROAR

The 1913 Code followed the convention of using male pronouns and other gender-specific language. For example, the first rule under "Duties to Fellow Brokers" read: "An agent should respect the listings of his brother agent, and cooperate with him to sell." At the time, women comprised only a tiny fraction of REALTORS°. It wasn't until 1989 — when 52 percent of members were women — that gender-neutral phrasing was introduced.

Stopping Ice Dams

By Steve Vacha Home Standards Inspection Services

If a home has a history of ice damming, fall is the time to try to prevent further problems.

Ice damming occurs when heavy snow on the roof starts to melt. The melting is usually caused by inadequate insulation in the attic. Too much warm air in the attic area warms the underside of the roof or the sheathing, which causes the snow on the roof to melt.

The snow melts and drips down the roof until it reaches the part of the roof that overhangs the house and is not warmed by the attic air. This water that is freezing slowly backs up, literally creating a damming affect which grows up the roof from the gutters. This can often create a roof leak which can show inside the home at ceilings near exterior walls.

It is never a good idea to get on a roof and chip off the ice once damming has occurred because it is dangerous and can do more harm than good. We will periodically find roofs where homeowners have damaged their roofs when trying to chip off ice.

It is best to take preventative measures and stop the warm air leakage into the attic. If the underside of the roof is the same temperature as the exterior side of the roof, the snow will not melt in the first place and start the ice dam.

Seal air leaks coming in from the interior of the house and through duct leaks in your attic to stop warm air leakage (the source of the problem).

- After sealing leaks, add additional insulation as needed in your attic.
- Provide adequate attic ventilation and make sure attic insulation is not blocking roof ventilation.
- Clean leaves and other debris from gutters before the first snow to help prevent ice build-up in the gutters.
- Consider hiring an energy specialist, who uses diagnostic equipment that is useful in a proper diagnosis of your home's needs.

The key to preventing ice damming is to keep your attic temperature the same temperature as the exterior.

Remember, it is never a good idea to climb on an icy roof.
